"CMS OFFERS A STUDY THAT IS OPEN-ENDED AS TO THE DEGREE OF INITIATIVE AND INVOLVEMENT OF THE STUDENT . . . THE SITUATION REQUIRES A MATURE AND SELF-DISCIPLINED PERSONALITY."

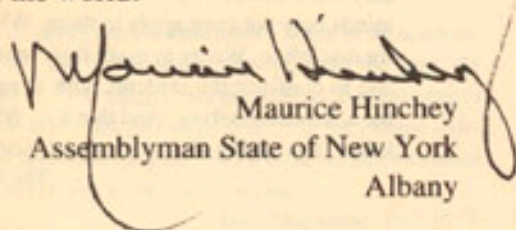

CMS Catalogue, 1979-80

"The art of improvisation, in the foreground of contemporary musical practice, is an art of self-discipline. Far from being a practice second to notated composition, it has been a means for even more precise personal expression in all the world's musical cultures, including the West. Studies of the world's musical cultures are to a large extent studies in the art of improvisation; observations of attitudes and approaches are not merely interesting as exotic objects of study, but are directly inspiring as examples of this discipline. No matter what material one chooses to use today, this basic attitude of self-discipline towards precision in all details must be developed.

The contemporary situation has created a new sense of the purpose and impact of the musical laws; a glimpse of what other cultures have known about the relationships of music to many areas of life. Basic musical training, the kind that does not deal with a particular musical style or with the playing of an instrument, seems to be beneficial for practically anyone. A sense for right timing and rhythmic cycles, for example, seems to be a basic human need. In fact, all the performing arts could benefit from these practices. This is why body discipline, dance, all visual media, poetry, songwriting are complementary to contemporary musical development."

Karl Berger

"The Creative Music Studio is certainly one of the most important music centers in the country, and has made the Woodstock tradition of music real for people around the world."
